

What's the difference?

1-day in-person

You'll be introduced to the fundamental elements of Narratives for Change.

Content is presented in person by our expert trainers using a mixture of slides, video and real life examples.

During the day there will be:

- presentations by expert trainers
- facilitated discussion
- reflection questions
- small group activities.

Time commitment of 1 day (7.5 hours) in usual business hours.

What people love about 1-day training:

- coming together in-person
- cover all the fundamentals in one day
- having expert trainers present content and facilitate group activities
- opportunities to ask questions and hear from other participants

Online training

You'll learn and have opportunities to practice the foundational elements of Narratives for Change.

Content is mainly delivered online with things to watch and read. Your trainer will provide insights, feedback and answer questions about your work.

Each week you will:

- work through new online content
- do individual activities
- participate in discussion forums
- meet with your pod group.

Time commitment of approximately 4 hours per week over 8 weeks.

What people love about online training:

- learn when and where it suits each week
- comprehensive content
- balance of individual and group activities
- opportunities to practice and apply what you've learned individually and as a pod group.

Find out more at theworkshop.org.nz/training